ELEVATION.

Tuxedo Park occupies the highest point on East Washington street, and the highest point in any direction within equal distance of the center

The official survey in the city engineer's office shows this addition to be eighty-five feet higher than the corner of Washington and Meridian streets, and seventy feet higher than the corner of Illinois and Twenty-fourth streets.

The land gently slopes on all sides from Tux-edo Park, giving the finest natural drainage.

Any one who has watched the growth of real estate in cities knows that the most valuable property is always located on the highest ground, frequently being two or three times the price of low-lying property within equal distance of the center of the city.
